CARD OF THANKS

Mr. Louis Tortorelli and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Tortorelli, of Natal; Mr. and Mrs. O. Bomben, of Coleman, and Mrs. Elise Tortorelli and family, of Blairmore, desire through The Enterprise to thank the doctors and nurses and all who assisted during Mr. Tortorelli's illness; also those who sent flowers and cards and letters of sympathy, and those who so kindly loaned cars for the funeral.

A WORTHY IDEA

Mrs. A. E. Taylor, of the Wainwright district, comes through with the following novel idea at this time. She would like to see all the school children, for this year at least, give up their door-to-door canvass for treats on Halloween, and, instead, each housewife give their own child 50 cents, which could in turn be given to some worthy fund. Where no children are going to school, money could be given to some other child. Perhaps the teacher of a class could co-operate and collect same from the pupils. This money could then be given to a fund, say the Queen's Fund for bombed-out children in Britain. Every child would be proud to think that by thus giving up their treats they would be helping a worthy cause.

ANDREW TORTORELLI PASSES SUDDENLY

Andrew (Andy) Tortorelli, well known town foreman, passed away rather suddenly at the local hospital at about 5 p.m. on Friday last, from complications following an emergent operation for gallstones.

The news of his sudden death came as a great shock to the community in which he was so well and favorably known. His place as town foreman will be hard to fill.

Andrew was born at Homer, B.C., thirty-two years ago, son of Louis Tortorelli, now resident of Natal, and the late Mrs. Tortorelli, who passed away in Natal some six years ago. He came to Blairmore to reside ten years ago, and later married Miss Paul, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Paul, of Blairmore. He is survived by his wife and two small children, son and daughter; his father and one brother, Ralph, at Natal; two brothers and a sister, Mrs. Allen Dixon, at Roseland, B.C.; one brother in California, and one serving with the R. C. E. overseas; also a sister, Mrs. O. Bomben, in Coleman.

Funeral service was held at St. Anne's Catholic church by Rev. Dean M. A. Harrington on Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, where Libera was sung, and the remains were laid to rest in St. Anne's cemetery. The funeral was very largely attended. Pallbearers were John Huchala, Jack Tompkins, Charles Biegan, Steve Huchala, Angelo Stella and Leslie Emmerson; while honorary pallbearers, representing the local branch of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L. were B. Hobson, D. Lewis, J. W. Howe, C. Millar, J. E. Upton and D. A. Howe.

Numerous floral tributes testified to the esteem in which he was held. For several years past, Mr. Tortorelli had very efficiently held the position of town works foreman.

Following is an extract from a letter received at Wainwright recently from a worker in a Red Cross depot in North Wales: "We would like the people of Canada to know how much we appreciate their kindness in sending so much clothing over here for the poor homeless people. I helped in a depot for Wales. We stand amazed when we see the charming frocks of all sizes, woolen jumpers, baby clothes, indeed everything that anyone can need. We are touched by the greetings which we find in many of the pockets of the little frocks. Our duty is to sort the clothing into bundles for six depots in Wales, so we do not see them distributed. I am quite sure that the poor people are delighted with the clothing, also with the notes put inside. If they are not answered, it is because many of them might be incapable of doing so, and some might not have writing materials. I hope, however, you may hear from some of them in due course. We can never repay such large-hearted generosity. Please accept our most grateful thanks."

Canadian "Catmen" Handle New Tanks

The Canadian Army Tank Brigade now in Britain have been given their first new tanks for further training. They have been lucky in being among the first to receive the latest type. In this photograph heavy tanks of a French and English-speaking battalion from Quebec province are lined up in mass formation.

ANDERSON—CAMPO

A pretty wedding ceremony took place at the United church, Blairmore, on Saturday, October 25th, at 3 p.m., when Rose Pauline, fourth daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dominic Campo, became the bride of L.A.C. Ivan J. Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Anderson, of Swan River, Manitoba. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. B. Arrol, B.A. The bride was dressed in a gold satin gown with gold veil, and carried a bouquet of roses. She was attended by Mrs. F. Smianotto, a sister, who wore a dusty rose crepe gown. The groom was supported by Mr. Floyd Smith. Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, only immediate relatives and friends being present.

RECRUITS WANTED FOR ANTI-AIRCRAFT BATTERY

An opportunity presents itself today for South Alberta young men to join a very attractive branch of the Canadian Army and continue to serve together for the duration of hostilities wherever the fortunes of war lead. In Lethbridge, Major R. W. Phipps is now recruiting for the 112th Light Anti-Aircraft Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery. The officer commanding has impressed himself on those who have already met him as an outstanding military leader. He has already served in the Canadian Army for many years—two years as a gunner, and six years as a sergeant. The battery is a unit of Canada's Fourth Division, and it is authoritatively stated that it will be in action before long.

Prospective recruits between the ages of 18 and 45 years are invited to report to the Armories at Lethbridge, where daily medical boards are being held. There will be no delay in being attested.

Majority of the battery's personnel of eight officers and 275 other ranks will be South Albertans, and the unit is a most attractive one to young men anxious to serve together.

A Lethbridge pioneer in the person of Mrs. C. F. Conybear passed away on Saturday. Her husband predeceased quite a number of years ago. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. A. I. Brauder, of Lethbridge, and Mrs. F. E. Fisher, of Toronto.

If kiddies want to be treated right this Halloween, they should not resort to any mean pranks. The grown-ups, who should know better will no doubt reap their reward. Some are entitled to punishment and will no doubt get it. There is really nothing clever in mean tricks.

RECRUITING OFFICER TO VISIT CROWS' NEST PASS

We are advised that an officer from the R.C.A.F. recruiting centre, Calgary, will visit during the period stated below for the purpose of interviewing persons in these districts who are desirous of making applications for enlistment in the Royal Canadian Air Force:

Kimberley, Nov. 10, 1 to 10 p.m.
Cranbrook, Nov. 11, 1 to 10 p.m.
Fernie, Nov. 12, 1 to 5 p.m.
Michel, Nov. 12, 7 to 10 p.m.
Coleman, Nov. 13, 1 to 5 p.m.
Blairmore, Nov. 13, 7 to 10 p.m.
Wainwright, Nov. 14, 1 to 5 p.m.

A medical officer will also be in attendance.

Dr. W. F. Green, Conservative candidate was elected to represent the Cranbrook constituency in the B. C. legislature in the general election on October 21st.

Recently a crude joke was perpetrated near Holden. Someone notified the secretary of the school division that the Mayflower school had been burned down. The secretary registered a claim for insurance to a local agent. The agent phoned the insurance company in Calgary, who in turn instructed fire adjusters to look the loss over and make settlement. A day or so later two adjusters arrived in Holden from Edmonton, and from this point, accompanied by the superintendent and secretary of the division, started out to the site of the fire in the twilight. On approaching the location, eager eyes witnessed the Mayflower school standing out in majestic splendor against the horizon. What a disappointment to all concerned. It's a mean joke, anyway.

BEARCATS' HOCKEY CLUB REORGANIZES FOR SEASON

At a well attended meeting held at the Cosmopolitan hotel last week, the reorganization of the Blairmore Bearcats' Hockey Club was effected, with Ben Hobson as president, Charles Freeman as vice-president (both re-elected), J. L. McLeod as secretary-treasurer; Harold MacPhail, J. V. McDougall and Louis Cecchi, executive. A. Vajprava and the president were elected delegates to the league, and J. V. McDougall to represent the club at the annual meeting of the Alberta Amateur Hockey Association.

It is felt that Blairmore can muster a fairly strong lineup, despite the drain caused by war services.

A small surplus of funds remains from last season to carry on with, and with improved conditions promising, a good season is looked forward to.

M. RAY VISITS CHICAGO

Mr. M. Ray returned home this week from a week's vacation trip in Chicago as a guest of his company.

He was one of 75 men from 25 States and 6 Canadian provinces, who were entertained by Swift & Company as a reward for outstanding performance in their sales records in the past year.

It was a busy seven days that was outlined, filled full of sight seeing and conferences. Arriving in Chicago on October 11, the salesmen were taken to Dyche Stadium to see the Western Conference football game between Northwestern and Wisconsin. After dinner that evening they attended a broadcast of the National WSL Barn Dance. Sunday was devoted to sight seeing and a "Chuck Wagon Jamboree." Monday was given over entirely to business conferences with various department heads. During the week the guests visited the Planetarium, the Aquarium, and the city parks. They were guests of the Don McNeill Breakfast Club and had breakfast with McNeill and his fellow "clubbers," following the broadcast.

Altogether it was a week packed full of thrills. During their visit they met and discussed business with John Holmes, president of Swift & Company, and other company officers and executives.—Fermie Free Press.

Broadcasting to his people on the first anniversary of the Italian attack upon Greece, King George II. declared that her fight against the Axis goes on, both inside and outside the country. Greek land, sea and air forces carry on as British allies. He told the people that their great national treasure remained intact, and was being increased and consolidated.

PARCELS MAILED TO BOYS OVERSEAS

The local branches of the I.O.D.E., Red Cross and B.E.S.L. combined this year in making up and sending parcels to local boys who are serving with the armed forces. Thirty-six overseas parcels were mailed on Wednesday, each containing the following: 3 packages of gum, 3 bars chocolate, 1 package tobacco and papers, 2 packages cigarettes, 2 handkerchiefs, 1 tin soap, 1 tin tooth paste, 1 tin shoe polish, 1 tin coffee, milk and cream mixture, 1 tin apron, 1 half-pound tin butter, 2 pounds fruit cake, 1 tube shaving cream, 1 package razor blades, 1 package cookies, 1 half-pound package cheese, half pound taffy and 1 pair socks.

The ladies of the I.O.D.E. and Red Cross are to be congratulated upon this excellent choice of articles, and all will no doubt be greatly appreciated by the boys when received at or around the Christmas season.

Other parcels for boys serving within Canada will be mailed out shortly.

The ladies wish to thank all those who kindly donated towards the making up of these parcels, and for the assistance given on the recent I. O. D. E. tag day.

WOMEN INVITED

Canadian women are now being invited to fight Hitler with one of their favorite weapons—a good meal. An urgent call has gone out from the department of national war services for 300 cooks.

Applicants don't need to be fancy culinary experts or dietitians in order to qualify. The main requirement is that they know the simple recipes for the "home-cooked" style of food so dear to the heart of the airman and soldier boy.

If the volunteer is accepted, she will be issued a smart uniform and enlisted in the Canadian Women's Auxiliary Air Force or the Canadian Women's Army Corps.

The need is a vital one and authorities have promised there will be no delay in handling applications. Successful applicants will be notified at once to report for medical examination. Rate of pay is ninety cents a day, with uniform, medical services and board supplied.

Application forms are available at all R.C.A.F. recruiting centres, Military District headquarters and at the offices of National War Services divisional registrars throughout Canada.

Successful volunteers for the Canadian Women's Auxiliary Air Force will be sent for three weeks of training at Haverall College, followed by a special six weeks cooking course at Quelp. They will then be posted to R.C.A.F. stations.

Chances for promotion in the cooking branch will be as good as in any other trade of the service auxiliaries. Every woman who steps forward will be playing an important role. Not only will she be helping to keep Canada's soldiers and airmen in trim by preparing good food for them, but she will also be releasing a man for service behind a gun.

Personal Greeting Cards, with your name and address neatly printed thereon, may be had at The Enterprise office at moderate prices. Call and see samples.

WORLD HAPPENINGS
BRIEFLY TOLD

An authoritative source said that 60,000 men from all parts of the British Empire were prisoners of war in enemy hands.

Air Chief Marshal Sir Hugh Dowding of the Royal Air Force has been placed on the retired list, it was announced in the London Gazette.

The commander of the German submarine "U-70" recently captured in the Atlantic by a British patrol bomber, was shot dead in an attempt to escape from prison camp.

A Royal Air Force gunner, only survivor of a bomber which crashed in the North sea, saved himself by swimming nine miles to shore after stripping of his flying outfit.

Possibility of new purchases of Canadian equipment for the Indian army is being explored in Ottawa by an Indian purchasing mission headed by Sir Chan Kuchuk Chetty.

Boredom has caused a boom in chess in Britain. Soldiers, fire-watchers and wardens have started playing the game to pass away idle time.

The human body can withstand the blast of high explosives more effectively than bricks and mortar, Professor S. Zukerman, young English anatomist, reported after conducting extensive research.

The war office has decided to match German terror films. More than 100 expert photographers have been released from the army and after a six-weeks course will be drafted to various war zones.

Cheque for £72,000 ($324,000) for purchase of airplanes was presented to Lt.-Col. J. C. Moore-Brabazon, minister of aircraft production, on behalf of the motor industry fund making their total gift $472,800.

End Of Royal Coach

Last Of The Famous Horses Are Now In The Zoo

Sir Garrard Tyrwhitt-Drake has sent to an English Zoo the three surviving white horses, known as Royal Creams or Windsor Greys, of the stable so long maintained as motive power for the royal coach. The animals have been pastured for months and are somewhat thin. As the London Times points out editorially, they hardly give visitors an adequate idea of the eight plump stallions which on state occasions appeared in the streets of London with the royal coach. Sir Garrard writes to the Times that the decision to give up these living emblems of the royal house was not surprising when one considers the expense of maintaining them. He adds: "In many ways like the Belgian Blacks, they had much better quarters and kindling action, they are 'soft' horses, rather stupid. They must have been fairly strong because the royal team of eight not only dragged the royal coach, which weighed upwards of six tons—two only at a walk—but each horse carried a set of red Morocco harness weighing over one hundred pounds and the four offside horses a position as well." Dispensing with the Royal Creams and use of the massive gilded coach in which the young George III. opened parliament in 1762 and which had been the focal point of most important royal processions ever since.

Milk Composition

Milk contains approximately 13 per cent. solid water. This is a larger amount than occurs in many foods, yet the fact is frequently overlooked because milk is in liquid form. The solids are composed of several food elements, proteins, fats, sugar, and minerals, each of which performs its special function in nourishing the body.

A Strange Parish

One of the world's strangest parishes is that of the chaplain of an Iraq oil company. Only six feet wide, but 1,200 miles long, the parish covers the area of two pipe lines from Haifa to Tripoli, and the chaplain administers to the men in charge of these.

It is estimated that Great Britain is spending $2,039,583 every hour, in financing the war. It comes high, but we have to do it—or perish.

Just Reflex Action

When Baby Smiles In Sleep It Is Unconscious Act

When a baby smiles, it is from mirth or from an uncontrollable reflex?

An article in the magazine Hygeia, has this to say about babies. "Observation with a motion-picture camera has recorded that young infants often smile in their sleep, but seldom when they are awake unless the skin around, the zone near the mouth is gently stroked. The smile seen on the baby during sleep is thought to be of reflex origin, an unconscious act of which the baby may be entirely unaware. It should be remembered that the mouth and lips are the most sensitive parts of the body in early infancy. Stimuli in this area, from within and without, are readily received and the reflex movement of some of the facial muscles respond to produce the smile."

Secret Air Defences

Britain Is Preparing For German Night Bombers

The long hill in heavy German operations against Britain has been utilised in manufacture and training efforts, and Lt.-Gen. Sir Frederick Pile predicts that if the Nazi Air Force resumed night raids in force this winter its losses will be twice those of last winter.

Gen. Pile is chief of British anti-aircraft defences. He said anti-aircraft fire efficiency had increased between 15 and 30-fold since September, 1940. He reported guns and searchlights had been more favorably situated and that the men were better trained in the use of radio location finders. In addition, he said, Britain has obtained more secret devices to deal with aerial invaders.

There was no hint of the nature of these devices.

Shipping Losses

Have Been Less In Last Year Than In 1917

British, Allied and neutral shipping losses from all causes have been less in the last 12 months than they were in 1917 from submarine attacks alone, A. C. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, declared in a Trafalgar Day broadcast.

Britain and her allies lost 1,969 merchant ships and fishing vessels of 5,839,000 gross tonnage in 1917. This covered the period of unrestricted German U-boat warfare which reached its peak in April of that year.

Mr. Alexander acknowledged, however, that British and Allied losses had been heavy.

Had His Number

A distinguished visitor to a lunatic asylum went to the telephone and found difficulty in getting his connections. Exasperated, he shouted to exchange: "Look here, girl, do you know who I am?"

"No," came back the calm reply, "but I know where you are!"

The lighthouse of Macelo, Brazil, stands on a hill in midtown, fully a half mile from the sea.

HER SOS SAVED SHIP

Officials have revealed that an SOS signal sent from a Norwegian freighter by Fern Hodgett, (above), Toronto girl wireless operator, played a big part in saving the ship and cargo after it was attacked by a U-boat in mid-ocean. The submarine came to the surface about 300 yards away from them and had its sight trained on the ship, ready to fire a torpedo into her hull. Miss Hodgett sent out her SOS, which was intercepted by British naval vessels. The wireless message and an added burst of speed on the ship, discouraged the U-boat commander and he submerged rather than risk capture.

Not The Right Word

Killing Of Innocent Hostages Is Not Execution But Murder

A letter in the New York Times says: "I am pained to see some of our newspapers refer to the killing of innocent hostages by the Nazi hosts as 'executions.' An execution, according to Webster, is 'a putting to death as a legal penalty.' Let us call the killing of these victims of Hitler's bestiality by the one term—murder. Let the announcement read: 'Hostages murdered by Nazi orders.'"

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

NOVEMBER 2

SIN AND ITS CONSEQUENCES

Golden text: If we confess our sins, he is faithful and righteous to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. 1 John 1:9.

Lesson: Genesis 3:1-24; Psalm 141:3-5; Jeremiah 17:9, 10; Mark 7:20-23; Romans 1:18-32, 6:23; Galatians 3:1-14; 1 John 1:9, 2:6; Revelation 22:10-12.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 51:1-13.

Explanations and Comments

We Read What We Sow, Galatians 6:7, 8. Be not deceived, God is not mocked, as they who expect to escape the consequences of their actions seem to think they can mock him. God's law of the spiritual harvest is that whatsoever a man sows that shall he also reap.

We usually think of this as referring to tribulation for wrong-doing, and so it does, but the happier meaning is also true that "he who sows wheat reaps wheat, not tares." Verse eight is a particular example coming under the general truth expressed in verse seven. "The flesh" is here thought of as the nature which God imposes come out of the sins that men have done" (John Ryles).

What We Should Be, 1 John 1:5, 6. The message which John had received from Christ (see verses 1-3) and which he now hands on, is that God is light and in him is no darkness (moral darkness, i.e. sin) at all. "Light, as against darkness" means ethical perfection. It describes the absolute purity and holiness of God as he has been revealed in Christ." (A. S. Peake).

It is not possible to live in sin and enjoy the fellowship of God, John next declares. "Walk" here in verse six is a familiar figure of speech for one's customary conduct. "Not loving the truth" means not living in harmony with the demands of truth: "The life as well as the statements of the lips is false."

"A life in moral darkness can no more have communion with God, than a life in a coal-pit can have communion with the sun." (A. Plummer).

What Soldiers Eat

According To A Report From Britain They Eat More And Drink Less Than The Men Of 1914

To-day's soldiers don't like beer. They prefer sweet things of all kinds. And they don't care much for community singing. They would rather read.

There are at all like the men of 1914, according to a survey of conditions in the camps, conducted by the British military, naval and air forces canteens departments.

Last war 98 per cent. of the total sales of the army canteens was for beer. To-day, only five per cent. of the turnover in the canteens is in beer.

In the World War, soldiers liked to eat big. To-day they prefer sweet cake, cream buns, chocolate.

Indian soldiers have the sweetest tooth of all.

The Allied troops put sausages first among their food favorites. Twenty-five different varieties are supplied.

Canadians like hot dogs, American coffee and cheese croquettes.

Sailors like sweets, too. And the men of the Royal Navy ask for so much lime juice and soda that special soda fountains are being installed on some warships.

According to Dr. J. P. S. Cathcart, a noted neuropsychiatrist, Canada's fighting men of 1940 drink less than the soldiers of 1914-18, but they eat more. It seems that they have contracted a disease known as "the snack habit," and the amount of chocolate bars, doughnuts and peanuts they make away with is positively amazing. In addition to possessing enormous appetites for sweets the fellows have a remarkable capacity for "guzzling" soft drinks between meals. The doctor says that often when a man is sick the cause of the trouble can be traced back to the canteen; and from what he's been eating 'you'd think he was a small boy with a dollar at the circus."

"Snacking," while it seems to be a very infectious disease, does not appear to destroy the men's appetites at meal times. When the dinner gong goes they're right there, ready to make short work of the food set before them. Canada's soldiers are said to be better fed than any others in the world.

A Fair Hint

The fact that Norwegians poured kerosene on codfish that was being shipped to Germany should give Adolf a good example of what Norway thinks of his protection policy from the British. And the group who watched German-held Oslo being raided by the R.A.F. and celebrated after the damage was done, provided another example.

Health LEAGUE presents TOPICS OF VITAL INTEREST HEALTH OF CANADA

"The health of Canada's manhood is such an important factor in our war effort, it may be the determining factor whether we win or lose," declared Dr. James J. McCann, of Ottawa, chairman of the Parliamentary Health Committee, speaking recently to an audience of women in Toronto.

To win, Dr. McCann declared, we must be strong, morally, mentally and physically. "It is not enough to have the will, the will, not to be financially strong, or to have all the instruments of war, unless we have men and women in good health to work on the home front."

Why were 12,000 men who offered their services to their country rejected because they were physically unfit, Dr. McCann asked. "Probably with old heart or kidney lesions, the result of diphtheria or scarlet fever measles, or other defects of stomach ulcers that either were preventable or could have been cured early treatment being available."

Dr. McCann urged that every Canadian soldier be immediately inoculated against diphtheria. As for industrial workers on the home front, he urged that their hours of work be not too long, their working conditions should be good, and their nutrition up to standard.

In conclusion, Dr. McCann advocated a national health crusade, subsidizing of full-time health services, medical care of the underprivileged, federal grants to voluntary bodies engaged in health work.

His Legal Opinion

What One Lawyer Thought Of Charge Made By Associate

E. E. Edgar tells this story in the Chicago Daily News. When Senator Roscoe Conkling was a young lawyer, he once defended a man who was charged with committing arson. Conkling worked very hard on the case, but lost after a bitter fight. When he tried to collect his fee, the man refused to pay, claiming that it was exorbitant.

"That man provokes me," Conkling told a fellow attorney. "I never had a client who questioned my fee before. I spent a lot of time on him. He was convicted, yes, but I worked hard for him. I fought his case through the lower courts, appealed the decision, and even took it to the Supreme Court, where he was finally given ten years. And just because I charge $3,000 for my services, he grumbles. Now I ask you, was that too high a fee for such a case?"

"Well," said his associate, "there is doubt that you got a great deal of work, and I don't think $3,000, an excessive fee, but it is my considered opinion that he could have been convicted for less money."

Some folks wonder why they don't get on, when all they're trying to do is get by.

Fishery research in Canada dates from 1852.

CHAPTER XXX

The tiny hands on Devona's own watch pointed at five minutes past 2 when Macias finally turned off the main boulevard into a quieter street, swung into a curving drive. The Louis Quatorze! Devona recognized it instantly.

Macias didn't speak as the velvet-lined elevator carried them up to his elaborate suite. Not until he'd closed the door, dismissed the houseboy, did he turn toward her, fix her with the black, smiling cruelty of those dark eyes.

Calmly he tapped the white shoe box he carried under his arm. "I put this away first, Dona, my darling. Nesty stuff—Eroin. I don't think you'd like it."

Mute, she watched him cross the long drawing room to the blotchy oil painting of the Monterey pines. Reaching the heavy gold frame at the corner, he slid back the picture, revealing the efficient little wall safe.

Shuddering, she turned her back to the Monterey pines.

"Cold?" Macias' voice taunted her. "I'll mix a drink."

"No, thanks."

"Come, sit down." He indicated one of the matching chairs flanking the huge fireplace. "We have lots to chat about, you said I."

Obediently, she dropped into the thick-cushioned chair, watched him take a cork coaster from a small drawer in the mahogany lamp table, set the sweating high-ball glass on it meticulously.

Grimly, she notched her chin high, met his eyes steadily.

"Now, my darling, suppose you tell me why you go so thoughtfully west on that little strand for me?"

Alert, Devona played for time. "Just—for fun."

"Pretty dangerous fun— isn't it?"

She shrugged. "Maybe."

"Of course it had nothing to do with young Brasher!" he said, smiling as he drained his glass.

"It would have—if I'd gotten away with it," she admitted coolly, amazed that the terror inside didn't show in her voice.

He nodded. "Yes, I thought so. Too bad you didn't get away with it, too. Young Brasher is going to need help."

Devona felt her cheeks black but kept her voice steady. "Really? You've been so—co-operative—already, too, haven't you?"

"Yes. Until just recently, I've been able to give Brasher advice that has kept him out of danger very nicely." He smiled wickedly. "But now—since he has been disregarding my suggestions—" He let that drift off into a sinister little silence.

"I only wanted to be sure what your connection is with this little deal," Macias was saying, "before I shall say—help young Brasher to retire."

By marshaling every shred of self-control of which she was capable, she didn't let a flicker of emotion show in her face. "Nothing, Mr. Brasher, didn't even know I suspected anything."

"No? Really, now, Dona." He smiled, poured himself another brandy. "You don't expect me to believe that."

"Why not? It happens to be the truth."

He just looked at her over the rim of his glass. "You are a beautiful little liar, Dona. But—" He shrugged. "—we'll change all that. How long since you have suspected that I managed this little enterprise?"

"Oh—I don't remember."

"And—" the laugh was gone now, "how many people have you told?"

"None. I wanted to figure things out for myself."

"I see," skeptically. "You're a cool little customer. Have you figured out what will happen now?"

"No—" a wry little smile. "I think I can leave that to you."

He smiled. "What, exactly, does Dale Brasher mean to you?"

"Nothing," and kept her fingers crossed.

"How would you like to play the game my way?"

She toyed idly with the strap of her handbag and stalled. "Meaning—?"

"Meaning that you'll have a chance to make yourself some nice change. I could use a lovely woman very nicely—a lovely woman with daring wit and the right attitude."

She smiled. "Thanks, mister, for the compliments."

"Besides—" deliberately, he filled his glass again, "it wouldn't be healthy for you to go on meddling in matters you don't understand."

"Maybe if you explained—"

Slowly he put down his glass, leaned toward her. "A smart girl like you ought to be able to guess."

Macias came to stand just behind her, the sound of his heavy breathing, the touch of his hands on her arms made her shudder involuntarily as he turned her toward him.

"Going to be sensible, sweetheart, and listen to reason?" he asked, his eyes alight with fire. "I can make things pretty sweet for you if you'll just play along with me."

Trying not to let her repulsion show, she cocked an eyebrow impudently. "And—if I don't—"

His fingers tightened on her arm. "You will. You stand here. You like nice things. You'll like it here much better than the place—"

He was to send you. Just to keep you out of danger, of course."

Of course, Devona thought, he hampered like a piston. "I see."

Behind them a chest door opened suddenly and some one laughed—a shrill, hysterical sound that was merciless and horrible.

Startled, Macias released Devona. They both turned to face a slim, dark-haired girl—the muzzle of a grim little pistol.

It was the girl who'd come to the El Mexicano that evening, Devona recognized now. Freda Camp. One of Macias' catfoes.

"Freda! How the hell did you get in here?" Macias took one step toward her, but she waved him back.

"Just stay where you are, dearie. I want to get a good look at you before I send you where you belong."

"Listen, Freda. You can't pull this stuff. You—" Macias blustered.

"Can't I? And why not? You need killing, you know."

"Maybe I do—calmly enough. But what good will that do you? The cops will catch up with you and—"

"Oh, no they won't, dearie. Because this time I'm going right along with you—via the next bullet. The cops and the newspapers will have a lot of fun with the story."

She smiled calmly at Devona. "Maybe they'll even think this dame did the job. No witnesses. Motive—jealousy. Make good headlines, anyway, won't we, Joe?"

Devona felt him stiffen, reach calmly for a cigarette.

"Well—" he began, calmly, but his eyes never left the girl's face; "go ahead. If you've made up your mind—"

He struck a match, touched the flickering flame to the cigarette, and then, as if by accident, flicked it directly toward the girl's face.

Only a moment's distraction, but enough. A moment later he had leaped to her side, wrenched the little pistol from her hand, thrust her, cursing, into a chair where he held her easily.

"Damn you, damn you! Give me that!" he cried hysterically, and then burst into tears.

MEDALS FOR BRAVERY GIVEN WORKERS

Winnifred Muriel Cassar and "Molly" Maude Helen Tinsley, above, typify the courage of the girl volunteers of Britain. They are A.R.P. ambulance drivers and were awarded the B.E.M. for bravery in air raids.

Devona heard her own breath release itself in a little scream as she stepped into a chair.

"Oh, no," Macias pointed the little gun at her now. "Just all where you are, until you get back your senses—if you have any. You blundering little fool."

His swarthy face flushed purple with anger now. Devona clung desperately to the chair arms, terribly sorry, in the midst of her own terror, for the pitiful creature huddled in the corner of the big sofa.

Macias was furious. Part of it probably the reaction of his own startled fright. Part of it, his wrath at being taken by surprise. Ego-ridden, he'd want to run all of the show. The girl had succeeded in surprising him, holding him—even for a minute—at her mercy. She'd pay for that.

"I've told you to beat it," he raged. "I even gave you the dough to beat it out of the state. Why didn't you go?"

"I—I couldn't. I wanted to—"

"The hell with what you wanted. Think I'm going to have you hanging around here when every cop in town has you spotted for a hop-head?"

"And whose fault is that, I'd like to know?" she screamed, and what was, apparently, her last shred of defiance. In another moment she'd buried her face in her arms, lay quivering with sobs.

Macias scowled at her a moment. Then he picked up a telephone; gave a number curtly.

"Hello! Speak to Wong."

A moment's silence. Then: "Wong? Got a job for you. Get here as quick as you can."

Replacing the receiver, he turned to the trembling girl on the sofa. "Wong'll see that you get out of town," he said, with an abrupt laugh. "And that you don't come back either. Maybe next time you'll obey orders."

Slowly horror poured awful realization into Devona's numbed brain. He didn't—he didn't—mean that—that—

"Jose!" She sprang to her feet. "You don't mean you aren't going to—"

Urgent Call

Canadian Women Enlisted To Land Services For War

Canadian women are now being invited to fight Hitler with one of their favorite weapons—a good meal. An urgent call has gone out from the Department of National War Services for 200 cooks.

Applicants don't need to be fancy culinary experts or dietitians in order to qualify. The main requirement is that they know the simple recipes for the "home-cooked" style of food so dear to the heart of the airman and soldier boy.

If the volunteer is accepted, she will be issued a smart uniform and enlisted in the Canadian Women's Auxiliary Air Force or the Canadian Women's Army Corps.

The need is a vital one and authorities have promised there will be no delay in handling applications. Successful applicants will be notified at once to report for medical examination. Rate of pay is ninety cents a day, with uniform, medical services and board supplied.

Applications are available at all R.C.A.F. recruiting centres, at Military District Headquarters and at the offices of National War Services divisional registrars throughout Canada.

Successful volunteers for the Canadian Women's Auxiliary Air Force will be sent for three weeks of training at Haverall College, followed by a special six weeks cooking course at Guelph. They will then be posted to R.C.A.F. stations.

Chances for promotion in the cooking branch will be as good as in any other trade of the service auxiliaries. Every woman who steps forward will be playing an important role. Not only will she be helping to keep Canadian soldiers and airmen in trim by preparing good food for them, but she will also be releasing a man for service behind a gun.

What if cool days have driven us indoors? We can capture the departing summer in charming glass gardens, easily made!

Cuttings of plants are specially fascinating. With the prickly, quail-shaped plants you can combine yellowed daffodils and the sempervivum "hen and chickens" whose leaves grow in such fat little rosettes.

Best of all your glass garden thrives practically uncareed for. All you do to start it—using, for each, first a layer of cinders and then sharp sand mixed with some garden loam. Seeds or cuttings will grow or you may put in the tiny plants you can buy cheaply at stores.

Covered, the terrarium provides its own moisture, so that a weekly spoonful of water is more than enough.

The container? You can make a large one with panes of glass and electrical's tape. Or you can use any clear glass container. In a candy jar African violet and fern are lovely; in a fish bowl, jolly red berries evergreen.

Our 32-page booklet shows in detail how to make glass gardens for woodland and cultivated plants, orchids, gardenias. Also tells how to make bottle and landscaped terrariums, clever dish gardens. Has directions for kitchen-window herb garden.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "Glass Gardens and Novelty Indoor Gardens" to Home Service Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 115 McDermott Ave., E., Winnipeg, Man.

ALBERTANS AWAKES

It is just about time the people of Alberta awoke to a realization of the insincerity and inconsistency of the Aberhart government and saw clearly the political and economic double dealing that it is practicing.

In a financial statement issued by Hon. Solon E. Low, provincial treasurer, on the Treasury Branches, that minister said the loans being made to customers by the branches were made at 6 per cent interest. This statement ought to arouse the ire of every public spirited man and woman, not because 6 per cent is an exorbitant rate to charge these days so much as because this is the substitute for the Aberhart "interest free loans."

How much the people who believe in Aberhart and the sincerity of the Social Credit government like to be hoodwinked, bamboozled and flim-flammed! Interest free loans!

Interest free loans were promised by Premier Aberhart, but like the promised basic dividend and freedom from taxation, they have materialized in a hoax—loans at 6 per cent interest! A higher and harsher rate than that charged by the mortgage companies and the "criminal" banks.

Have the people of Alberta never heard of the old proverb, "actions speak louder than words?" Heartened by the promises of the Aberhart legislators the hopeful farmers have approached the Treasury Branch managers with requests for their free loans, but have found they were free at 6 per cent interest only. — The Spotlight.

The golfer stepped up to the tee and drove off. The ball sailed straight down the fairway, leaped onto the green, dived into the hole. "What have you suddenly gone crazy about?" asked the golfer's wife who was trying to learn something about the game. "Why, I just did a hole in one!" yelled the golfer, a wild gleam in his eyes. "Did you?" said his wife, placidly. "Do it again, dear; I didn't see you."

WHAT ELSE IN THE COMMUNITY HAS THIS FLEXIBILITY

An earnest young student of journalism was assigned to write an essay on newspapers. "Of what value are newspapers in a community?" she asked in a letter to the country editor for help.

"We are greatly surprised at this question," replied the editor. "We thought there was no one who did not know that a newspaper stands alone as a community utility."

"When we were a very small child in school, we learned that there is nothing that equals well chewed newspaper for making spit-balls. They have a sting and a sickening quality not to be found in any other paper."

"Newspapers are used everywhere by housewives as a covering for the shelves on which pots and pans are stored. Newspapers can be and are spread on chairs when standing on them to prevent scratching the varnish. They are also used to wrap things that are packed away in the attic, as printers' ink discourages moths."

"Housekeeping cannot be carried on without newspapers. A newspaper of wide circulation, crumpled in the hand, makes an excellent mop to clean grease from stoves and ranges. A bit of coal oil on a newspaper turns it into a fine polishing mop for metal work. The newspaper is unequalled for starting the fire, or for lining garbage cans."

"In cold weather, the editorial page of a newspaper, spread over the chest and buttoned under a coat, will keep out the cold. Newspapers stuffed in a leaky pipe can be used as a temporary measure. The society section of a newspaper is valuable to spread on a floor when painting, to keep paint stains off the linoleum."

"Oh, we can go on for hours, narrating the various things for which a newspaper may be used and still not name half of them. And if all else fails, one can sit down and read the measly thing. What else in the community has this flexibility?—The

FACTS ABOUT CANCER

A lump in the breast is a danger signal, a warning to that person to seek medical advice. Not that a lump in the breast means that it is cancer. It is probably not, but it is also true that a certain number are and many more may become cancerous if neglected for any length of time.

A lump in the breast is a very definite danger. It is a red light of warning, but like a red light it becomes a safeguard if precautions are taken.

What should be done if you discover a lump in your breast? First of all don't get panicky or hysterical about it. It is not nearly so serious as many other conditions if attended to at once. There is practically a hundred per cent chance that nothing serious will come of it if proper medical advice is sought early.

Don't try to massage it away or use somebody's "wonder oil" on it. You are only spreading it and making it more difficult for later treatment.

Don't be ashamed of it. Don't try to hide it or forget about it. See a doctor at once. Let nothing delay you because the delay is dangerous. Thousands of lives would be saved every year if it were not for the delay. Don't wait for pain to occur with the idea that if it isn't painful it cannot be cancer. Unfortunately, early cancer is not painful.

Don't put off consultation on account of expense. If you are needed by your family it is all the more reason for looking after yourself.

The man and woman approached the theatre, evidently expecting an evening's enjoyment. As the man stepped briskly forward to purchase the tickets, the woman grabbed his arm. "I do not want to see this show, Alfred; I do not like Chinese plays," she exclaimed.

ONE ALBERTAN'S DIVIDEND

A postmistress in Southern Alberta has addressed the following reply to a recent letter asking her to contribute to war savings certificates:

"I beg to bring to your notice that my income is only $100 a year. I am doing my little bit by saving the government paying me an old-age pension. My former meagre savings were invested in Alberta government bonds. Therefore, through the dishonesty of that government, I have nothing left either to pledge, lend or save."

This reply, it is hoped, will come to the notice of Premier Abernethy and Provincial Treasurer Low, both of whom draw big salaries and expense allowances. This elderly woman is not a big shot. There are thousands of other poor people in Alberta who have been badly hurt by the arbitrary cut in government bond interest. Wealthy owners of Alberta bonds can manage to get along with the half interest paid or even no interest at all, but to the people who invested in Alberta bonds to help them in their old age, it is another story. Evidently the premier and Mr. Low are not concerned about their plight.—Herald.

THE CHARTER OF THE ATLANTIC

O tides and winds of freedom,
Bear the message o'er the seas
That evil shall not triumph,
And all men shall be free.
Two nations stand together
As champions of the right,
Two beacons blaze together
Against the clouds of night.

Beware, ye Hosts of Satan,
Who blast each crippled land,
For God's avenger cometh
And the sword is in his hand.
His face is as the lightning,
His anger swift and sure,
His name is Truth and Justice
And his victories endure.

Beneath his mighty banner
We face the bitter odds;
We shall not faint nor falter,
For the cause we guard is God's.
We scorn the power of tyrants,
And the challenge they have hurled,
And march with souls undaunted,
To liberate the world.

—Frederick George Scott.

Boys we've known since babies

● We see them board the train after their last leave home . . . boys we've known since they were babies. We say "Good Luck . . . we're all pulling for you", as we bid them Good Bye. But are we? Are we "pulling" . . . all we can? What are we doing to help them? Are we giving them the things they need to badly . . . ships and tanks and guns and planes and ammunition? Are we giving them all they need? That's one thing we can do . . . we who stay at home . . . one thing we must do. We must provide the money so much needed to win the war . . . and one way to do that is to buy more War Savings Certificates.

The help of every Canadian is needed for Victory. In these days of war the thoughtless, selfish spender is a traitor to our war effort. A reduction in personal spending is now a vital necessity to relieve the pressure for goods, to enable more and more labour and materials to be diverted to winning the war. The all-out effort, which Canada must make, demands this self-denial of each of us.

Fight For Victory

War is no longer just a series of tactical exercises between professional soldiers. It is a nation against nation, says a writer in the Financial Post.

Hitler has pitted the force and strength of the entire German people (and all the slave labor and "best" of a rich continent) against the resources—human, material and spiritual—of the democratic nations. He fights—as we must fight—with political weapons, psychological weapons and economic weapons.

In an "all-out" fight for Victory, the whole population is engaged. Every John Canuck has some Hans Schmidt whose effort he must match—and surpass. Thus there is in Canada a factory front. There is a metals front, a financial front, a farm front. Together they comprise the economic front, equal in importance to the military front comprised of the fighting armies, air squadrons and naval ships.

The modern infantry division costs eight times as much to equip as the division of 1914-1918. It has 50 times the horsepower in its transport and fighting vehicles. It has 8 to 10 times the "fire-power" in its small arms and guns. A machine gun costs $500. It takes tens of thousands to equip our troops. A tank costs $75,000. We are making hundreds. A bomber plane costs $100,000. A dozen can crash in a night.

Ponder on those simple facts and you see why 18 workers on the home front are needed to keep one combatant in the field. You see why the economic front is a "front" and not just a sector or salient in this war.

Must Be United

The story of the economic mobilization of Canada is the story of an entire nation bracing itself to carry the greatest load it ever tried to carry. A load involving as great an effort as the very opening up of the country and the construction of the first canals, the first highways and the first trans-continental railway system.

Canada is tested up to handle, in the next 12 months, war production in the factories alone equal in value to more than the total war output of Canada throughout the whole of the last war.

New capital investments in factories, on government account alone—not including private investment—equal all the capital invested in the great pulp and paper industry of Canada, the world's largest producer of newspaper paper. And we're not at the peak yet. We measure our economic war "potential" only to find that we have to do even better than a measured maximum.

To-day, the controllers of our war economy must try to make seemingly inadequate resources stretch over a vast area. There aren't enough men; there's not enough steel, oil, rubber, silk, copper or food, not enough factory space and machinery.

As the war proceeds, more shortages will become apparent. Too many shortages of too many key products would be fatal. Our war effort would slow down and become less effective than it should be. Inflation would take hold and sow the seeds of postwar economic chaos.

Have To Produce More

The only safeguard against either evil is the proper organization of every phase of the country's productive life for war. Something must be borrowed from the ruthless force and control of the totalitarian state. It must be drafted on to our democratic, individualistic economy to enable us to match the gigantic productivity of a state that has for years been nothing but a war machine. We have to produce more and use less of what we produce for civilian purposes. But people have to be not just asked to spend less; they have to be given less to spend and less to spend it on.

Life must be directly controlled to increase the nation's hitting power. Fiscal measures must be drastic—and are.

The limits of Canada's war efforts have been set not entirely by the "physical capacity of the economic system," as one observer put it, so much as by the imagination and genius of Canada's leaders, her industrialists and her people. For the theoretical limits of capacity can be—and have been in small measure—exceeded by effort and sacrifice.

The "insatiable demands of war" are calling forth a total economic effort exceeding anything in our previous history. All our treasure, all our mankind, all our resources are committed to an "all-out, national effort." That is the simple policy of Canada at war.

Women Accomplish Miracles

Thousands Of Articles Of Clothing Made By Women Of Canada (By Gregory Clark)

Seven hundred and fifty thousand articles of women's and children's clothing have been made by Canada's women and shipped to Britain, and distributed. Eighty thousand blankets and quilts. Bandages, surgical and first aid dressings by the millions, all made by these same Canadian women who take a dollar, buy the raw material and make two dollars worth of the goods of mercy out of it.

Each of the twelve home defence areas of Britain has a mobile team provided by the Canadian Red Cross and ready to leave at an instant's notice for the scene of a bombing, cooking the food and preparing the tea as it goes. One hundred and fifty ambulances have been bought and sold for by Red Cross branches and are in use to-day in the rescue of civilian bomb victims. That number does not include 40 additional ambulances supplied to our Canadian troops overseas.

In May, the Canadian Red Cross organized a special fund to support the work amongst the bomb victims. It is called the Red Cross British Bomb Victims' Fund. Every cent contributed to that fund goes to the purchase of materials that will be made up by the women of Canada into garments for women and children, air raid shelter cloaks and baby layettes, maternity garments for women, and equipment, first aid and medical supplies. Every dollar given to that fund becomes two dollars worth of actual goods delivered. None of this fund will go as money to Britain. It will go as goods made by the skilled hands of Canada's million Red Cross volunteers.

Regardless of what other gifts you make to the Canadian Red Cross Society for its vast undertakings amongst our soldiers and sailors, or in its far-flung work in Canada amongst peace-time war victims, it is suggested that a gift to the Red Cross British Bomb Victims' Fund will be a particularly blessed donation to enable the women of Canada to rush every kind of aid over to Britain before another winter and its perils come. By a wonderful series of mischances and redirections, these women were successful in having in Britain a vast store of goods even at the start of this darkest year in human history which was last September when the Battle of Britain began. With the aid of the Red Cross British Bomb Victims' Fund, they will repeat that miracle for Britain.

Ice Dear In Alaska

For Some Weeks Price Has Been $80 A Ton

Winter is at hand, but ice has sold in Anchorage, Alaska, for some weeks at $80 a ton. Walter Groherts found a good supply for his cocktail bar and advertises it thusly: "Ice 50,000 years old—pure glacier crystals." It comes from the Igloo, where a mine, 60 miles away, where a vein of glacial ice was found to be good "pay dirt" after this fast-growing city exhausted the supply of ice cut last winter.

Labor Training Programs

Shortage Of Labor To Man Heavy War Production Is Seen

Canada, dipping deep into her reserves of labor to man increasingly busy factories, has also extended labor training programs to an extent unknown in the past, Labor Department officials said.

War emergency training program reports that 33,003 persons took training from April 1 to August 30. The 93 schools and training centers reported 10,963 were actually in training on August 1.

Large numbers of those in the lower age groups of the classes are young men who have been rejected for enlistment. Selection officers have instructions to avoid admitting to classes men of military age except those who are rejected.

In the industrial classes, discharged soldiers of the present war are receiving training alongside "veterans of the First Great War." In the ex-soldier category, 1,050 men were being trained in the April 1 to August 30 period, and of these 48 were between 16 and 19 years; 327 from 20 to 29; 148 from 30 to 39; 568 from 40 to 49 and 124 from 50 years upward. The total included 33 trainees whose ages were still to be submitted.

Of the total of 10,719 new trainees of all types enrolled between April 1 and August 30, the largest group, 3,972, was in the 20 to 29 years age class.

Officials said that during August new trainees entering the classes numbered 4,365 of whom, 1,415 were enrolled in industrial training courses, 1,322 joined Royal Canadian Air Force classes and 1,628 were referred to the schools by the army and navy for trade training.

From the classes, 1,598 were placed in employment in August, and 1,598 completed the training in R.C.A.F. classes enlisted and 34 from the industrial classes enlisted in other units. Army and navy personnel who completed their training in August numbered 1,260.

Officials said the booming labor reserves would soon be exhausted and other sources would have to be examined. They said that in non-agricultural employment figures for all Canada showed a jump of 26.5 per cent between April, 1940, and April, 1941.

Domestic Bureau of Statistics figures showed that while a reserve of young people who had never worked was built up during the depression years it had been heavily drawn on since the start of the war. The registration of August, 1940, showed 32,000 males and 450,000 females had never worked, but officials said this total had been reduced since that time.

For Longer Life

Medical Authority Thinks Man Can Be Made To Live 200 Or 300 Years

Dr. Maurice Ernest, 69, one of the world's greatest authorities on longevity, said that he would establish after the war a laboratory where he can develop his theories that man can be made to live 200 or 300 years.

Many discoveries that point the way to periodic rejuvenation with surgery already have been made, he said, and in this respect, the human race might take a hint from the fish.

"One of the many causes of aging is that man produces too much heat," he said. "Fish, which have the same temperature as the water in which they live, never grow old in the sense that their flesh becomes tough."

Although he did not suggest that humans seek some way to live in water, he said:

"A cook sometimes complains that a fowl is tough, but whoever heard one complain of a tough fish."

Dr. Ernest is a former newspaperman who covered London for many years. He has written Swedish and American papers at the turn of the century. He also assisted the late Conan Doyle in espionage during the Boer War, but gave up journalism to return to medical practice.

He founded the Centenarian Club in 1928 "to inspire men and women with the desire to live on as able-bodied, clear-minded Marjans (Christians) and investigate the means by which this may be achieved."

Dr. Ernest said over 200 centenarians all over the world had been admitted to honorary membership, "but unfortunately, they do not retain their membership long."

Many men and women is up their dogs at night but allow their children to run around promiscuously.

Women were first admitted to a university in Canada about 1850.

ARE PLANNING TO SEND QUICK AID TO BOLSTER RUSSIA

London.—Britain and the United States are working at top speed to offset Britain's inability to help Russia by attacking Germany in the west, despatches from London and Washington reveal.

The plan is to pour military and other supplies into Russia and to do it fast. Aside from Russia's urgent immediate needs, the plan looks forward to Russia's future struggle. It is based on the premise that even if Leningrad, Moscow and the remainder of the Ukraine fall, Russia will continue to fight into next year. It does not concede that they will fall, however, and the supplies now en route or ready for shipment, it is hoped, will aid the defence of those threatened centres.

The transportation problem is the most difficult, and it is being attacked with energy. The shortest supply routes are through Iran in the south and Archangel in the north. Washington has decided to abandon the long trans-Pacific route through Vladivostok and Siberia as far as United States shipments are concerned. Archangel will be used instead.

Archangel is normally ice-bound by the end of October but ice breakers can certainly keep it open until mid-January and perhaps through the winter. The shortest supply route by rail with Moscow, 550 miles away. At Volgograd it connects with the Trans-Siberian westward to Leningrad and eastward to the area beyond Moscow, should the Russians have to retreat from there.

Even more important than Archangel is the Iran route. Britain and the United States have agreed to collaborate in increasing the capacity of the railroad across Iran and to furnish great quantities of rolling stock. Technical missions will be sent to Iran and Egypt by the United States to strengthen this route, as well as being sent to Russia.

Supplies for Russia via Iran come by sea to Bandhar Shapur on the Persian gulf. From there the railroad runs 500 miles to Bandhar Shah at the southeastern extremity of the Caspian sea. Thence the supplies are ferried 500 miles across the Caspian to Baku, the oil port in the Russian Caucasus. From Baku rail communications are good into Russia proper.

This route would be absolutely vital if the Germans get far enough east to open up a Caucasian front. If for any reason Baku is cut off from the remainder of Russia, supplies can be shipped 800 miles over the Caspian to Astrakhan, on the north shore of the sea.

The Iranian route has been in use for some time, and heavy shipments have been cleared into Russia. For aerial supplies, it is supplemented by the South Atlantic ferry route to Africa.

It was revealed in London that locomotives and railway carriages already are being delivered by Britain to Russia. The United States has been asked to provide 200 locomotives and 4,500 freight cars, mostly for use in Iran.

Supply Of Eggs

A Mild Winter On Prairies Would Increase Production

Ottawa.—A mild winter on the prairies will mean a great deal in facilitating the supply of Canadian eggs to the United Kingdom, agriculture department officials said.

Initial steps to increase the supply of eggs for export have worked out well, officials said. Their reports indicated that many poultry owners increased flocks last spring and that the young birds will be laying in December, with the prospect that a surplus of eggs will be available for shipment.

"An element of uncertainty is the weather in the prairie provinces during the winter months," an official said. "If the winter is mild, the increase in egg production should be substantial; if it is severe, the gain in output will be less than we hoped."

London.—Vatican City is considering purchase of a merchant navy, according to a Reuters Stockholm dispatch, quoting the Berlin correspondent of the newspaper Dagbladet. "The dispatch" said the ships would fly the pope's flag and supply food supplies.

Are Ready To Go

Canadian Fighter Pilots In England Anxious To See Action

Somewhere in England.—Willing to serve anywhere from Russia to the Middle East, Canadian fighter pilots and bomber crews recently arrived from the Dominion are leaving their last real holiday before going on operations.

Scores of these young Canadians, trained under the British Commonwealth air training plan, are at the personal reception centre in an English coastal town where airmen from overseas wait for their posting orders.

For most, the delay is only a few weeks, but for some it is more than a month, and despite the attractions the town offers, none billets in hotels, sea bathing from a sandy beach, and the absence of drills, all will be happy when the life of leading ends and word comes to proceed to a station.

"I've had enough waiting already," said Sgt. Pilot Eric Macintosh of Fort Morien, N.S., less than a week after he arrived from Canada. "I came over here to fly and the sooner I can take a Spitfire or Hurricane into the air the better I'll like it."

Macintosh expected to get into action three months ago, but an attack of appendicitis last July sent him to hospital a few hours after he received his draft to come overseas. Now that he is here he wants to make up for lost time.

Most of the Canadians will be posted to Royal Canadian Air Force squadrons in Great Britain, but if they were asked to go to Russia or the Middle East they would jump at the chance.

Said Sgt. Herb Butcher of Nanaimo, Ont.: "Now that we've come this far we might as well see as much of the world as we can before we go home."

The pilots have their own ideas about the type of planes they want to fly but for the most part they will be satisfied with any machine provided it takes them off the ground.

P.O. Harry Bennett of Vancouver was so anxious to fly that although he had worked his way up to the rank of flight lieutenant on the administrative side of the R.C.A.F., he resigned his commission where he couldn't get into the air and re-enlisted as an aircraftman second class.

He started from the bottom again and the priviledge of his life was when he received his wings qualifying him to be a pilot.

Sgt. George Jewell of Montreal and Jim McGrath of Edmonton, both wireless air gunners, want to get on big bombers, while Sgt. Jerry McPherson of Vancouver, an air gunner, has applied for posting to a night fighter squadron.

"And I don't eat carrots," he said.

Study Taxation

No Increase In Sales Tax Is Now Likely

Ottawa.—The government's new price and wage stabilization policy may have important influences on the trend of future taxes, it was suggested in government circles.

If prices and wages are to be held at present levels the tax increases regarded as certain to come in the next budget may be so designed as not to influence prices and costs of production to a greater degree than necessary, it was said.

The principal tax which contributes directly to the cost of goods is the eight per cent. sales tax. In discussion on the last budget in the House of Commons Finance Minister Duley indicated the government had considered increasing that tax to 10 per cent, but decided against the increase because it did not wish to encourage an upward price movement.

With governmental policy now set even more firmly against price increases it is considered unlikely that any increase in the sales tax will be proposed for next year.

To conform with the general aim of stabilizing prices at present levels the taxing experts may be expected to recommend increase in direct taxes such as the national defence tax, the income tax and the corporation tax rather than increases in indirect taxes such as the sales tax, the customs tariff and the various excise duties levied on particular products.

Indirect taxes are those which are usually passed on by the taxpayer to some other person in the form of higher charges for goods or services. Direct taxes are those which hit one taxpayer and stay with him.

ISSUES REPORT ON R. A. F. RAIDS OVER GERMANY

London.—The air ministry and the ministry of economic warfare, having compared notes on R.A.F. bombers' latest raids over Germany, issued a joint report on widespread damage to German industrial and communications centres.

They said Cologne was "beginning to present an appearance comparable with some of the blitzed English towns" and added that Berlin's deluxe hotels, the Adlon and the Eden, were both hit on the same night.

Cologne was called a city that can take a lot of punishment. Landmarks such as the Kassel Palace, home of the old electors, and the Friedrichs museum in Cologne were said to have been gutted and a large department store known as Corda was destroyed.

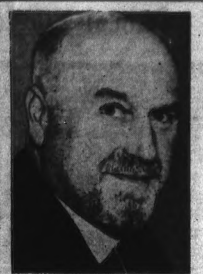

The raids of Sept. 7-8 were the R.A.F.'s heaviest on Berlin, but the statement said they were not comparable in weight with the German raids on London in the autumn and winter of 1940.

The Berlin Knorrbrunne plant, producing most of the brakes for German and European railroad cars was hit. Repair shops at Schleusinger, Potsdam and Anhalter station damaged.

The tunnel between the latter two stations was hit with many casualties. The elevated railway near Friedrichstrasse south of Unter den Linden was hit with damage needing three weeks to repair.

Bremen: Severe damage in the neighborhood of the Atlas and Pocke-Wulf aircraft plants; another factory hit in daylight, probably by

Speed Production

Washington.—Leaders of a British management-labor mission, which has spent a month studying United States industry, predicted that American arms output would reach a peak in the spring sufficient to "lick Hitler or anyone else."

BRITISH TAKE OVER OIL PLANT

Indian riflemen enter the main gates of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. plant at the head of the Persian Gulf on the River Shatt Al Arab, in Iran. The personnel, mostly British, witnessed the 'troop movement', and were on hand to welcome the British Empire troops. Meanwhile Russian troops moved in from the north and the ancient kingdom was soon jointly held. The oil plant here was functioning as usual within a few hours after the troops took over.

"WE'VE NEVER BEEN NEUTRAL..."

Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox and Chief of Naval Operations Harold Stark, testified before the House foreign affairs committee holding hearings on the revision of the Neutrality Act. Secretary Knox said, "We have never been neutral. We should put a period to this piece of national hypocrisy." Appeal To Frenchmen

Are Aroused To Continue Sabotage Instead Of Killing Germans New York.—The BBC appealed to Frenchmen to refrain from killing Germans and confine themselves instead to acts of sabotage in the factories.

It predicted, in a broadcast heard by BBC, that for every French householder executed by the Nazis, two Germans will be shot in the future. "A German shot to-day will only be replaced by another German tomorrow, while 50 or more Frenchmen will lose their lives in the meantime," said London.

"A defective airplane part in an aircraft produced in France will cause the loss of a valuable machine for the Germans; a sabotaged tank will be of much more help to France than the life of one German soldier."

Norwegians Escape

Thousands Have Reached Britain After Many Adventures

London.—"Several thousands" of Norwegians have escaped to Britain despite the penalty of death for leaving the country without permission of the Nazi authorities, the Press Association stated.

"Apart from daring trips by two or three men in a rowing boat or a canoe, whole parties, sometimes 50 or 60 at a time, coast over in motor fishing boats," the Press Association added.

BRITAIN HAS BECOME A MECCA FOR REFUGEES

London.—Britain, one of freedom's last old world sanctuaries, has become a Mecca for people of European countries suffering under the weight of the Nazi boot.

In a constantly increasing stream, refugees from Holland, Norway, France and Belgium are finding their way to the shores of Britain. Britons, caught in occupied countries, have also made good their escape.

French refugees bring with them stories of increasing unrest in France. The return to London from the Middle East of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, leader of the Free French forces, was the signal for a burst of appreciation of the true France from British people who have recently reached home.

Correspondence received at the headquarters of Free France, particularly from refugee English women, tells of constant kindness to stranded Britons, hatred of the common foe, disgust with the devious ways of Vichy, and almost universal belief in a British victory.

A Manchester girl who escaped from Brussels to France, only to be hunted far south by the invaders, described how at a frontier station, two old women pressed a gold cross of Lorraine, the emblem of Free France, into her hand, murmuring, "Tell Gen. de Gaulle, tell England, we are counting on them."

Stories of refugee escapes are becoming legion.

One of the most dramatic was told by a 70-year-old English woman, the wife of a Belgian business man, who reached England after a 70-hour voyage from the Belgian coast in an eight-foot rowboat with an outboard motor. She was accompanied by her 20-year-old son and three Belgian men.

In a small outboard motorboat, a rubber tire for use as a lifebuoy, if necessary, and a small stock of food they set out on a voyage packed with thrills. A Messerschmitt passed within 30 feet and the refugees hid under some canvas. Gasoline ran out and a German E-boat passed so close it almost broke their ears. Finally a British patrol boat, signalled by a Spitfire pilot, picked up the party.

There is another story of eight Netherlands who escaped from Hand in a motorboat and crossed to the British coast in 13½ hours.

They made three desperate attempts before they were successful. The first attempt was made in a vessel owned by one of the eight. But she ran aground on a sandbank. German sailors boarded the ship and remained several days while six of the party hid in the hold. The men were without food and one of them lost 20 pounds during the ordeal.

They tried again, this time in a fast motorboat but they made too much noise. There was a German control station 400 yards away so the Netherlands sneaked back. A third attempt was successful, and now the eight men are serving with the Netherlands' forces in Britain and their own craft is part of the Netherlands navy.

HARD POSITION OF FRANCE UNDER GERMAN RULE

Vichy.—France struck a balance sheet of one year of collaboration with Germany and found that it had netted almost nothing beyond the release of 100,000 prisoners of war.

It was one year ago at Montoire, that Marshal Petain and Adolf Hitler laid the foundation for Franco-German collaboration.

Since then, France has realized none of the princely hopes she placed in collaboration. In addition, 1,400,000 prisoners still are behind the barbed wire fences of German camps.

France had believed that the Nord and Pas de Calais departments on the north coast would be returned, but they are still "hostage" provinces of the German military administration in Brussels.

She had even hoped that some solution would be found to save Alsace and Lorraine, but these provinces are now under a German garrison and 40,000 Frenchmen have been expelled.

She had hoped Germany would cut the occupation cost of 400,000,000 francs (about $8,000,000) a day by at least half to help avert inflation, but France still pays the full amount.

She had hoped Germany would eliminate the interzone demarcation line, or at least move it north of Paris, but here again there has been no change.

The German side of the ledger shows:

French war factories, although slow to start production, of planes, tanks, artillery and munitions, now are humming with activity as they fill German military contracts.

France has shipped Germany 14,000 head of cattle a month, 14,000 bottles of champagne, 80 per cent of her 1940 wine harvest and all her wine reserves, cheese, potatoes, sugar-beets, wheat and flour. Skilled French laborers, in all about 100,000 men, have gone to work in German factories.

"Peace" industries or orders the manufacture of alarm clocks, typewriters, machinery and other goods for German export in exchange for food and raw materials, are being filled by French factories.

The Vichy government insists there has been no military collaboration with Germany beyond the recruiting of a "volunteer anti-Communist legion" numbering about 2,200 men to fight against Russia.

To Command R.C.A.F.

Air Vice-Marshal Edwards Will Take Command Of Operations Overseas

Ottawa.—Air Vice-Marshal Harold Edwards, air member for personnel at Royal Canadian Air Force headquarters here, will leave Canada for Lorient, the command of R.C.A.F. operations overseas, it was announced by Air Minister Power.

Air Vice-Marshal Edwards succeeds Air Commodore L. F. Stevenson, air officer commanding. A.F.C. in Great Britain, returns to the Dominion to become officer commanding, Western Air Command, with headquarters in Victoria.

The present officer commanding at Victoria—Air Commodore A. E. Goddard—has been deputy inspector-general of the R.C.A.F. with headquarters here.

Air Vice-Marshal Edwards is succeeded as air member for personnel by Group Capt. J. A. Sully, present deputy in the personnel division.

Air Vice-Marshal Edwards—known in higher R.C.A.F. circles as "Gus"—was born in England, but came to Canada as a boy to settle with his family in Cape Breton Island.

In the first Great War he served in the navy and the Royal Naval Air Service. As a fighter pilot over France, Edwards was a member of an "independent" air unit under an organization plan which ultimately brought British, French and United States units under one command at Nancy. He was taken prisoner in 1917, escaped twice, but never succeeded in crossing the frontier.

On his return to Canada he helped form the Royal Canadian Air Force, and has been with that service ever since.

Use Camels For Shields
Calvo.—Desert patrols in the Libyan desert were reported using camels as shields. British headquarters said two patrols driving camels in front of them approached the Egyptian-Libyan frontier area, apparently searching for mine fields. "They were engaged with fire and driven off," the communiqué said.

Theories are more apt to work if those who have them will.
